Steve Lavey

Academic & Professional Summary

- Member, Australian Institute of Building Surveyors
- Accredited as an Assistant Building Surveyor

Employment History

Steve's career in the building industry commenced as an apprentice Carpenter & Joiner working on building projects. Over a period of two decades he worked on a wide range of projects and gained licences as a Builder and Building work Supervisor.

He then moved to Local Government and worked for a period of twenty years with the Cities of Port Lincoln, Beachport and Unley as a Building Development Officer. For the last five of those years he headed Unley's Building Department as the Senior Building Development Officer. During this time Steve played an active role in many Council and industry committees such as Building Fire Safety Committees and the National Trust, and he was instrumental in writing and overseeing the implementation of the City of Unley's Disability Access Plan.

Steve has been involved in the building industry for a long period of time and has a very comprehensive practical knowledge. Having been the officer responsible for building control over both metropolitan and large rural council areas, he has highly developed abilities in achieving positive outcomes for all parties involved in the development approval process.
